To Whom It May Concern,

I am Andrew Nordelus, Associate Director of Event Technology for Flagler College, and I am writing to you today to discuss not only the character of Peter Vernon Hartley but also the passion and insight he brings to any situation. He and I met the beginning of his 2021 fall semester and not even two weeks later I hired him on as the head Lead Technical Intern. Within the first five minutes of our first interaction Peter offered over 11 different solutions to solve a problem.

After working with Peter and seeing how he interreacts with those around him in a profession and nonprofessional capacity, I can confidently say that Peter possesses the ultimate "can do" attitude while taking on all task with a positive energy and a light-hearted joke. On a personal level Peter has shown a high level of charisma and integrity which helps him excel in making cross department connections.

Another strength of Peter is that he has a strong grasp of technical knowledge and excels at project execution. One such project was the creation for a new Audio-Visual department of the college. This project entailed a budget creation, spacing layouts, and explanation of the scope of need and of the department for the development of the college. It would be an understatement to say Peter happily lead the charge on this project and expertly navigated the high stress red tape of the education system.

While I can continue to sing Peter praise not only on his decorum and technical knowledge but also his willingness to help in any situation, my only critique for Peter is that he is still navigating the politics and undue red tape that can pop up in the professional realms.

In short, I would consider any company very lucky to have Peter join the team. Once Peter graduates and moves on to bigger and better workspaces, we will be sharing bitter sweet feelings knowing that he has a future filled with success.

Sincerely,

Andrew Nordelus
